

The JTC School team is willing to organize courses for personal development, in the business field, working as a coach for high seniority professionals.

The method used, tested on the basis of extensive international experience, is extremely personalized and requires strong motivation and a conscious use of resources by the professional.

JTC's coaching approach is arranged for: high seniority Executives, Top Managers and Entrepreneurs. Main target is to start a significant path forward to personal and professional development.

why

Taking a course with a JTC School coach is useful for those who want to:

- change the pace of their business;
- get that change they've been waiting for so long;
- deal with a generational shift.

how

The method includes:

- meetings with the coach;
- in-depth multidisciplinary activities (not only technical but, above all, practical);
- verification of the results on a regular basis.

after

At the end of the course (which can last 12 to 18 months) the professional will have:

- implemented a series of radical changes;
- achieved the goals identified at the start of the activity (otherwise the course is not finished);
- gained extensive professional experience.

In order to maintain the high quality standards of this activity, the candidates will have to take an aptitude test.

Due to personal experience's extremely particular features, JTC will provide a specific program with heterogeneous topics and an important practical part.

Time needed for JTC coaching is highly variable and depends on different elements. Our approach includes 2 or more hours meeting with the coach (they could be held also in different locations).

JTC coach's investment entity depends on several elements. Every personal coaching path is specifically designed.

If you like to go more in detail, contact us: coaching@jtc-school.com

Through its founder, JTC school has been dealing with personal development for over 10 years.

Its main goal is to transfer an array of skills and stimulate the development of abilities essential to the improvement of personal characteristics in social relations.

Experience, skill, talent and a natural propensity to human relationships are the key elements for achieving excellent personal and professional results.

Together with coaching we care about: public speaking - negotiation techniques - leadership and group dynamics.

The JTC School team is available to support the construction of a training program specific to individual needs. The possibility consists in aggregating programs and/or topics of different issues in order to create a path suitable to support personal and professional growth directed to specific personal needs.

A wide range of solutions designed for corporate HR development have been specifically engineered.

Each course was designed based on the extensive experience gained in heterogeneous contexts. A feature common to all issues is the strong experiential component, essential for proper learning and subsequent use on behalf of the admitted participants, each of which will receive an individual follow-up session aimed at transferring what was learned, in actual fact, to the specific personal and/or professional sphere.

if you want to:

communicate more effectively
increase the ability to influence others get more from the people with whom you relate obtain a radical change
